cret Meeting of the Pretender to the Throne and the IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.1 LONDON, September 13 .- [Copyright]-Decidedly Paris has been the center of European interest this week, what with the "coulisses de Boulangiste" and the various duels and complications arising therefrom. The duel, as she is fought in France and by Frenchmen, has always tended to promote the gaiety of nations, but the affairs in whice Rochelort and Thiebaud and Mermiex and seven opponents have been involved are more than usually amusing.

For instance, in the encounter between the exiled journalist at La Clinge, on the Belgian frontier, and the affronted Thieband, we have the humane spectacle of the surgeons carefully washing the swords of the combatants in antiseptic liquids before the fight, so that neither rust nor previous the fight, so that neither rust nor previous gore that those weapons may have drawn might have any injurious effect upon the two principals, and of Rochefort explaining after he had scratched the other warrior that the article at which he had taken offense was the article at which he had taken offense was meant to scarily some other person.

A HUMOROUS INCIDENT. Another humorous incident of this duel was the circumstance that on the way to the field of battle Rochefort desired to gratify his artistic taste by viewing the two pictures by Van Eyck in the Ghent Cathedral, but was afraid to do so lest the swarm of report-ers who followed him might think he had entered to pray before the combat. Still tunnier was the duel between Mermiex, author of the Boulangist expose, and De La Bruyere, the first of his seven challengers, which took place in Laguerre's garden at Maisonlafitte.

The duel was fought with the usual French caution, and De La Bruyere seemed to believe that he was getting on very well until one of his seconds informed him that he was wounded, and when the hero prompthe was wounded, and when the hero promptly stopped to inquire where he was hurt Mermiex accidentally jabbed him in the hand, inflicting the only real injury suffered in a French duel since Floquet, a lawyer who did not understand the sword, by a similar accident slashed Boulanger himself across the neck in the memorable encounter that preceded Le Bray General's flight to Beleium. flight to Belgium

AN EASY DODGE.

As de la Bruyere strenuously insists that Mermiex cut him on purpose the other six challengers have decided that he is not a in, and hence they cannot condescend to fight him, thus getting really out of a scrape themselves. The "coulisses de Boulangiste" continue, however, to be of the greatest interest, and there is little doubt that before many more days the en-tire iuside history of the great conspiracy will be made public.

history are particularly important, and Boulanger cannot now long put off the day charges that have been made against him since he left France, he would make an answer that would satisfy the people of France and confound his enemies.

A part of the interview with the Duchess that was published in Dizneuvieme Siecle throws much light on the entire situation. Being asked how she had been induced to give a princely fortune of more than 3,000,-000 francs to the Boulangist cause, she replied indifferently.

DETAILS OF THE CORRUPTION.

"It was not more than 3,000,000. It was exactly 3,000,000. My first payment was one of 25,000 francs for the first expense of the Nord elections. All that M. Mermiex has stated on the subject is correct. M. Mermeix even requested me to supply him with a detailed note of the sums paid. I said to him: 'It is useless to stir up the ashes of the dead.'" "I have been told, Madame, that the Comte de Paris sent you an acknowledgment, guaranteed by the members of the Royalist Committee, stating that you would be repaid after the royalist restoration, exenses you had incurred for Boulangism," said her interviewer. "It is correct that these 3,000,000 were to be repaid me on the royalist restoration, but there never was an acknowledgment, and still less any guarantee, of the Royalist Committee. The signature of the Comte ist Committee. The signature de Paris would have sufficed." "Did the Comte de Paris not pay any

"Not one sou. I believe he requested his friends to organize a fund in order to meet the Boulangist necessities."

"Has the Comte de Paris met General

A MEETING IN LONDON.

"Yes, once in London, in my presence, one month before the September elections. General Boulanger requested me to bring about an interview between him and the Comte de Paris. When I communicated to the Comte this desire of the General, he seemed surprised. 'Why,' said he, 'should there be this interview? It is impossible. I cannot receive him at the Sheen House." 'It is not at the Sheen House,' I replied, 'that you will receive him. It is here in my apartments at the Alexandra Hotel. You come to see me pretty frequently. The General does so, too. If it is known that you have met, we will say that it is an accident that brought you together.'

"Comte de Paris necepted. The interview lasted an hour and a haif. Domestic and foreign politics were talked about."

"Was any engagement entered into?"
"The Comte de Paris promised the assistance of his friends and money to subsidize a candidate approved by the General. He did not ask in exchange if the policy of the General were triumphant in the Chamber that the law expelling Princes should be

JURY ROOM LOGIC.

A Remarkable Instance Just Brought to Light in Paris.

[BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.] LONDON, September 13 .- A remarkable instance of jury room logic has been brought to light in Paris this week by the great Blowitz of the London Times. A few weeks ago an entire family in that city by the name of Hyam committed suicide because all were starving. The affair produced a great impression in Paris at the time and was discussed from one end of the city to the other. Last week a man named Moch was tried in Paris for having killed another because he refused to pay 1,000 francs he had borrowed. Moch admitted the crime and made no defense, and great was the sensation in court when the jury brought in a verdict acquitting him of the crime. Blowitz happened to meet a ember of the jury in the street one day this week and asked him why such an absurd rerdict had been rendered. The intelligent juryman, according to Blowitz, thus replied: "We had all decided to condemn him except one juryman, who was the foreman, a position however that had nothing to do with the acquittal. When we had all met in the consulting room it became clear that the prisoner could only have the benefit of extenuating circumstances, that is to say, of hard labor for life. Then the foreman, who did not want to condemn, said: 'Moch has a wife and five young children. If you find him guilty you will not restore his victim to life but you will make another Hyam family. The blood of these innocent children will be on your heads. You may give your verdict of your heads. You may give your verdict of guilty, but I will not do so. When we heard this we all gave a verdict of ac-

SENSATION OF THE HOUR.

EVERYBODY TALKING OF THE FRENCH

Interviews With the Comte de Paris, General Boulanger and Rochefort-The Former Defends His Course in Bucking the Recent Movement. [BY DUNLAP'S CABLE COMPANY.]

LONDON, September 13 .- The Comte de Paris was seen in the city last evening, and in reply to questions concerning his recent interview in the papers and what he had to say regarding his complicity with Boulanger he stated: "I am entirely indifferent to what the newspapers may say of me or whether it be in the form of condemna tion or adulation. Either is equally distasteful. You can say this as coming from me-that I can consider myself justified in using any means that may be in my power or I can command to break up the Republic. It is an unnatural form of Government, and France has never prospered under it, and never will. Her true position is that of a leading monarchy, where the ceremony that should surround Governments and rulers can be observed, and where the stability of the nation is not dependent on the office-holding combines to insure re-election, and the would-be office holder who SCHEMING AND PLOTTING to get the other ones out. The Republic has press should make it a subject of comment.

General Boulanger was seen later and at first seemed reluctant to speak upon any subject, least of all that touching the recent unpleasant disclosures. Finally, the General, evidently annoyed in his mind by the incidents of the past fortnight, very warmly said: "I don't consider it any relaxation of dignity to admit my chagrin at the perfidy and utter want of honor displayed by those and utter want of honor displayed by those who have been proud heretofore to call themselves my followers. Despite these desertions from me, my star is as bright as it ever has been, and I may, perhaps, be rather pleased than otherwise to be rid of those who are morally capable of playing the traitor, and might do so at a time when it would be rather more inconvenient and serious for me than it is at present. rious for me than it is at present." NO HOPE FOR BOULANGER.

Notwithstanding these brave words of General Boulanger's it is thought by the public that his hopes for a future are blasted. His only reliance for some time has been a war between France and some other power, when he hoped to be called back to take command of the army. Henri Rochefort was seen at the French Cafe and was perfectly willing, as he al-wave is, to talk. "I am a trifle upset by the developments of unreliability and sham in the utterance of a few turncoats during the past few days. I shall return to Paris and face the music, let come what may, I shall make the best of it. Further than this I am ready to fight any or everybody who dares

STRONG LANGUAGE. The most astonishing language, however, is used by M. Mermieux, the Parisian journalist, who when seen at the office of the Figaro, said: "Yes, I am somewhat happy over the row I have been the cause of raising, but yet I think I have only done my duty, as it's the duty of every newspaper man to learn all he can and tell it as quickly as he can get it into print. My opinion of Boulanger is that he is a fraud, and the Comte de Paris was using him merely as a catspaw for the throne. The Comte is the shrewd one, the General is either blind or a scamp. I have no hesitancy in saying that I joined the no hesitancy in saying that I joined the Boulangists only to make a good story for my paper, and when I did make the story I came to the conclusion it was time for Boulangism to die, and I killed it."

A POLITICIAN ABROAD.

He Thinks Tammany Will be Beaten la New York This Fall.

IBY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.1 LONDON, September 13 .- That pure patriot, Ex-Chamberlain William M. Ivins, of New York, is in town with views regarding the future politics of New York city that he does not hesitate to express. He sails hence on the 20th of the month and declares that he will then set the ball rolling with more investigations of the Municipal Departments. He predicts a combine of the Republican, County Democratic and Citizens' parties this fall to break the power of Tammany, and has a man for District Attorney, to wit: John Goff. He did have his mind, he says, upon Ellery Anderson for Mayor, but has decided that he won't do because the Reform Club won't support him.
Assistant District Attorney Macdonna

had the temerity to ask Ivins if he was traveling in Europe on the proceeds of his official relations with the city. Ivins re-sponded fiercely that he was traveling on the interest of his debts. "I have been," he said, "in office for eight years, and have held the best office in the municipal govern-ment, and it has cost me $250,000."

RUSK ON THE SCARE.

ing Why There is No Danger. WASHINGTON, September 13. - Secretary Rusk said to-day in speaking of the grain excitement caused by a fear of short crops: "Of course the fact that there was a slight falling off in the quantity of the crops has an effect upon the market, but the tendency has been upward, so far as prices are con cerned, on all the cereals. I attribute the increase to other causes than the short-age in the crops. The statement that this has been the lightest yield for 20 years I canhas been the lightest yield for 20 years I cannot agree with. This may be the case with the barley crop, which is exceptionally short. The shortage in the yield of some of the cereals this year was anticipated in the June report. The facts are that all the cereals have been merely moderate in their yield, and an increase in the price is only an indication that the tendency is that way.
Grain operators watch our bulletins very closely, and they no doubt make their calculations on the basis shown in them. So far as the information that we receive is concerned, it comes from a thousand different sources. Their object is to prevent great fluctuations.

"I do not apprehend any serious squeeze.

The Government reports have considerable influence in checking any complicated corner and everybody is enabled to know the precise condition of the crop. I think this country should raise less wheat and import less barley. We export wheat and import barley and we should raise it all."

Some few years ago, when the irrepressible crush hat first made its bow to an American public, there were not many who predicted a lasting future for these goods. Time, the great tester, however, has completely refuted these wiscacres, for with every season the sale of these exceedingly comfortable hats has steadily increased, and, judging by the lively inquiry thus early in the season, a greater number than ever will be sold this fall and winter. We have made special preparations to supply the bright demand for "Crushers" by showing a vast variety in colors and shapes. As to prices, everybody knows that we are never undersold.

Mail Brings Letters in Praise of His

"When I first made up my mind to consult Dr. Byers," says Mr. Learzaf, who is a tinner by occupation and lives at 485 Forbes avenue, "I said to myself, if I am so fortunate as to get relief I will never permit my name to appear in the papers; but when a few weeks ago Dr. Byers told me I needn't continue the treatments any longer, as my nose and throat were entirely well, and suggested that I allow him to publish my case as encouragement to others, I remembered that it was through the testimonials of others that induced me to take treatment, and I felt so grateful for the benefit derived that I said: "Go ahead, if it will point the way to some other fellow-sufferer afflicted as I was." Home Treatment.

Mr. Geo. J. Learzaf, 188 Forbes Ave.

"My principal trouble was my stomach. I was continually rifting, had pains and cramps, tongue always coated, and a foul taste in my mouth, especially in morning. I also had pains over my eyes, ringing in the ears, nostrils clogged up first on one side then the other, and a hawking and spitting up of a tongh mucus. I had tried almost everything I could think of myself and was suggested by friends, till I was discouraged. When Dr. Byers examined my nose and throat he said that all the trouble was caused by catarrh, and that I might swallow enough medicine to float a ship and would never get better without the aid of local treatments. I put myself under his treatment and soon learned by experience that his theory was correct, as I noticed a decided change from the first, and continued to improve, till now I am entirely well and glad to make this statement in favor of his treatment."

PRAISE OF HOME TREATMENT FROM BEAVER

PRAISE OF HOME TREATMENT FROM BEAVER A lady patient from Beaver Falls writes: "I have observed instructions in regard to treatment faithfully as possible and must say I have reveived benefit beyond my most sanguine expectations. The noises that troubled me so long have almost entirely ceased through the day only while eating or drinking, but they are still bad at night, but have so diminished that they are not so worrying. I have hopes that your treatment, if persistently followed, will have the desired effect."

THEATMENT $5. A MONTH MEDICIPE IN-FALLS. TREATMENT $5 A MONTH, MEDICINE IN-CLUDED.

Almost every day I hear of persons who would like to take treatment of me, but they fear my terms are too low to permit of good work. To such patient I wish to say this: Interview any person who was ever treated a month or more by me and by other physicians the same length of time, and I will cheerfully abide by the result. My early training as a druggist taught me how to compound medicines at the least possible cost, and as I toy at wholesale, I get the lowest obtainable price. My monthly drug bills amount to as much as that of some retail drug stores. In conclusion, my treatment is for that class of people who earn their money by hard work and appreciate the value of a dollar. I am doing work equal that which some physicians charge from $20 to $50 per month for, as will be vouched for by scores of patients.
